Baby, it's cold outside. Jack Frost is nipping at noses, toes and other body parts. But while causing pain, he's also painting delicate lace patterns on windowpanes. The message here is stay inside and stay warm. And we've got something that will light your fire—girls, dozens of them, all beautiful and wearing items of intimate apparel that will stoke your furnace. So make the best of it. Cook up a batch of mulled cider and relax in your favorite chair while cover models Jody and Kerri Hoskins begin a winter's tale of the sensuous secrets of sexy apparel chronicled in Playboy's Book of Lingerie.

There's nothing like having a sister. The Hoskins family has seven. The oldest two are this month's cover models. Kerri models to help cover school expenses. She plans to be a chiropractor. For fun, she'll do anything daring, such as bungee jumping and skydiving.

Jody Hoskins is the oldest of the clan. Going to college at a very conservative Baptist school left her feeling stifled, and now she works steadily as a model. You may have seen her in commercials for Coors Cutter beer and Wrigley chewing gum. Although more than two years separate their ages, Jody and Kerri often are mistaken for twins. They share everything, from clothes to secrets.

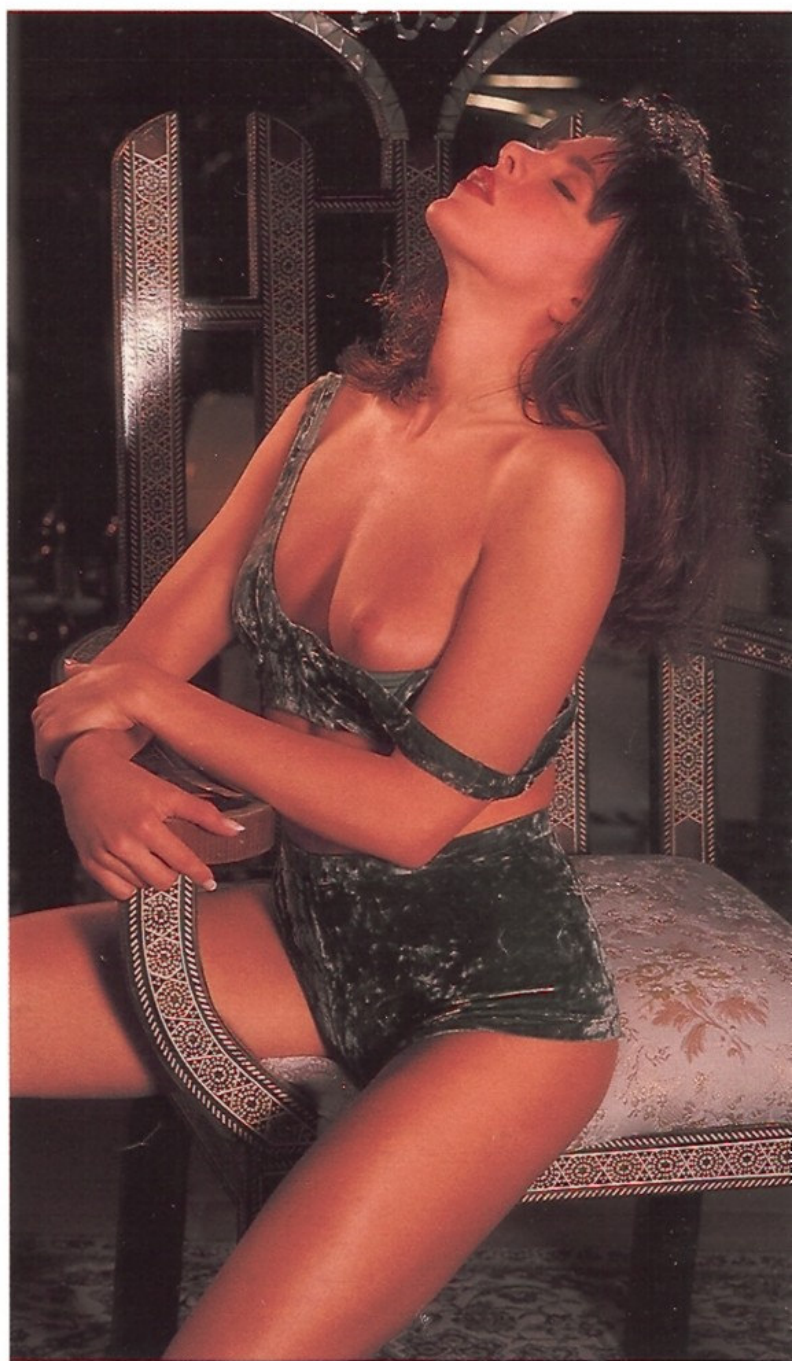

Record-breaking low temperatures simply won't be a problem when Anita Hart (above), Wendy Kaye (below) and Deborah Driggs (right) are around. You'll be able to conserve fuel, because these are women who generate all the heat anyone needs. Anita's bodysuit, Wendy's bra and Deborah's ensemble are almost too hot to handle.

Charmaine Garth (far left) doesn't believe in dressing down. Lingerie of molten gold molds itself to her body. Tonja Christensen (left) gets flirty in a charming chemise. Sharon Rinaldi (above) considers the weather and decides that the time is right for crushed velvet. Rebecca Ferratti (overleaf), in a bejeweled bustier, sends up enough sparks for a Fourth of July celebration.

If winter's here, can spring be far behind? Sometimes it seems it will never arrive. In advance of planting a garden, Sabrina Lora (above) wears a floral merry widow. Draped in enticing silk, Wahlea Bradley (below) lies in the lap of luxury. Exquisite is the only word for Kristine Rose (right) in a transparent, floor-length peignoir.

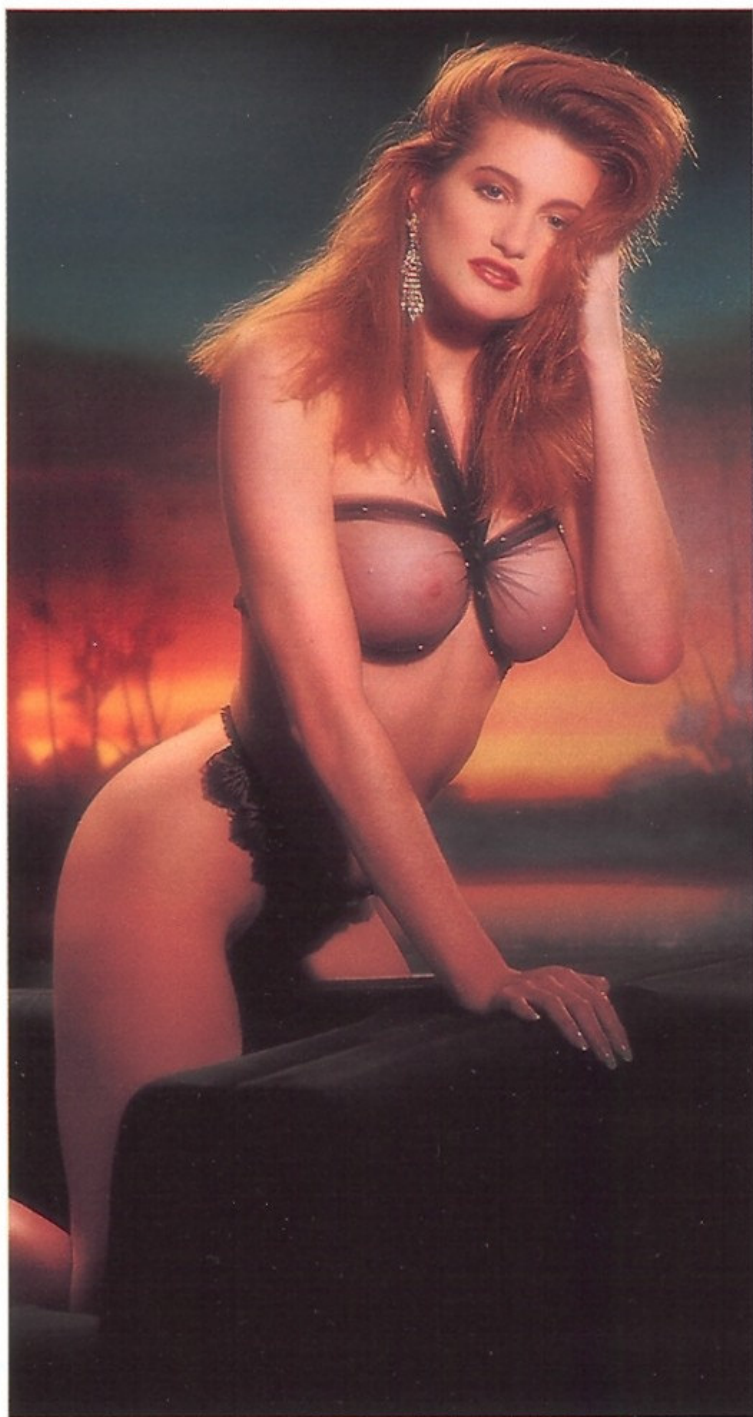

Winter occurs every year, and the only way to escape is to head for the southern hemisphere and stay there for months. To ward off the ennui caused by gloomy weather, psychologically hip ladies dress in brilliant colors. Stacy Orebaugh (left) and Cristy Thom (above) show us how.

Wise women do it as little as possible, but if they absolutely must go out in the cold, an inner glow is maintained by glowing innerwear. Turning up the heat are Kári Ross (above) and Isabelle Fortea (right), both wearing corselets.

Fancy lingerie is the best tonic for the wintertime blues. Celestial Pravato (left) has to be happy with her burnished satin. Shawna David (above left) creates a net halter to wear with her jazzy scanties. Amber Moore (above right) lounges about in a nightgown and a quilted bed jacket.

What do Anna Lambertini (above), Billie Jo Velasco (below) and Samantha Dorman (right and overleaf) have in common? Maybe a lot of things, but what we see immediately is beauty, tons of dark curly hair and a taste for outstanding lingerie. From bodysuits to bra and panties to minislip, all of their garments are maximally sensuous.

Looking as different as night and day, these ladies appear to have similar ideas about the value of relaxation and recreation. Janet Lois (above) in her prettiest boudoir outfit and Nancy Bright (right) in a wildly sexy bra treat themselves to a glass of iced champagne.

Concluding that this would be a good day for staying home, Jennifer Lavoie (left), wearing perky panties, checks her book to see how many appointments she will have to rearrange. Comfortable in their lingerie and cushy down comforters, Debbie May (above) and Tracy Dali (below) don't even think twice about going outside.

To accessorize or not to accessorize is not a question for Helen Labdon (above) or Heather Hayes (right). They consider lingerie a base on which to build a monument to fashion. Tera Tabrizi (overleaf) in plaid corset and panty manages to look saucy and sultry at the same time.

Only a February fool hits the slopes when he could be hearthside with his dream girl. Shawna David (far left) is persuasive in passionate purple. Corrie Singer (left) offers enlightenment in a cut-high-on-the-hip bodysuit. Kristin Herold (above) in a demibra is the clincher.

Shannon Rae (left) and pagemate Sheila (above) are all things bright and beautiful. Shannon's bra and thong and Sheila's slip are sexy and provocative, but utterly practical.

Nicole Grey (below) finds that a long weekend in a luxury hotel is a major turn-on. Corrie Singer (bottom) agrees. She settles down in her suite in a stylish see-through bodysuit and patiently waits for room service. Broadway-bound Lorraine Olivia (right) begins to dress, looking forward to the theater and a night on the town.

Burning the midnight oil, staying current in her field and wearing a wonderful teddy helps Teresa Langley (left) build confidence. Nikita Larson (below) and Diana Burnett (bottom) use Sundays for catching up on sleep. Michelle Dommergue (overleaf) tries to avoid office overtime. She would rather relax in a stunning camisole.

Combining convenience of pantyhose and sensuality of stockings make apparent the advantages of Casey Barrington's attire (above). What was sensational just a couple of years ago has become almost commonplace today, but a garter belt worn by Gianna Amore (right) still titillates.

Modern girls like to update intimate wear of yore. Lace-patterned stockings and granny boots complement the frothy ensemble put together by Mary Lou Cease (left). Classic hosiery held in place by garters seems well suited to Jeanne Basone (above). Kerri Kendall (below) gets a kick out of double-weave stockings topped with ruffles.

Browsing among stacks of books is a satisfying way to spend a long winter evening. Beckie Mullen (above) gets comfy in a thong before immersing herself in a novel. Gina Cabero (right), in the latest edition of magnificent lingerie, has a library from which to select reading matter.

It is a fact that nightgowns are more popular in winter than they are in summer. Sophisticated women prefer theirs to be ultraglamorous. Iris DaSilva (left) chooses black satin. Lori Jo (above left) and Victoria Williams (above right) like lace. Gina Cabero (overleaf) gets her inspiration from a unitard and a slim volume of poetry.

Long, hot showers are a frequent wintertime activity. Shedding heavy outerwear and wrapping up in cozy terry, Debra Jo Fondren (above) washes away her cares. Tammy Hansen (right) can happily anticipate the same result.

With the blank pages of a new year ahead, everyone starts with a clean slate. Hali Morgan (left) celebrates the world of possibilities and toasts the future. Tina Fraulini (above) gets off to a blazing start in a go-ahead teddy. If you'll pardon the pun, Lorissa McComas (below) is ready for the bar exam. Sorry, but we just couldn't resist.

No apologies are needed for these slips. Indeed, they represent the very highest level of good judgment.
Milimar Flores (below)

wears satin, and Christina Leardini (right) dons red stretch lace in a style that one could call a party dress for a very special occasion.

In a gallery lined with fabulous artworks, some images clearly stand out. And so it is with photographs. Framed like an oil painting on velvet, Reneé Tenison (left) appears as a modern masterpiece in museum-quality lingerie. Kimber Staren (above) also is a luscious figure study.

Staying close to home and hearth is the smart thing to do during frigid January. Lisa Carolyn (above) hides out amid the quilts. Neither Deborah Durst (below) nor Regina Cheng (right) is in a hurry to get dressed. Kaylin Brookes (overleaf) likes feeling free as a bird and seems overwhelmed by the prospect of layers of outer clothing.

Winter's slow pace leaves time to reflect, to cogitate on important matters. After hours of studying motivating factors, Alex Andrea (left) has picked up a few pearls of wisdom on love and lingerie. Tina Bockrath (above) ponders the beauty of perennial blossoms. Karen Foster (below) enjoys daydreaming before a log-burning fire.

Hearts and flowers symbolize Valentine's Day. It's all too easy to fall in love with women as beautiful as Park
Morgan and Cynthia Kaye,

posing prettily in look-alike
lingerie. Lisa Madison (overleaf) is appropriately accoutered for the most romantic of all holidays.

Several looks at Tammara Wheeler and her delightful bodysuit will leave you feeling as if you've been struck by one of Cupid's arrows.

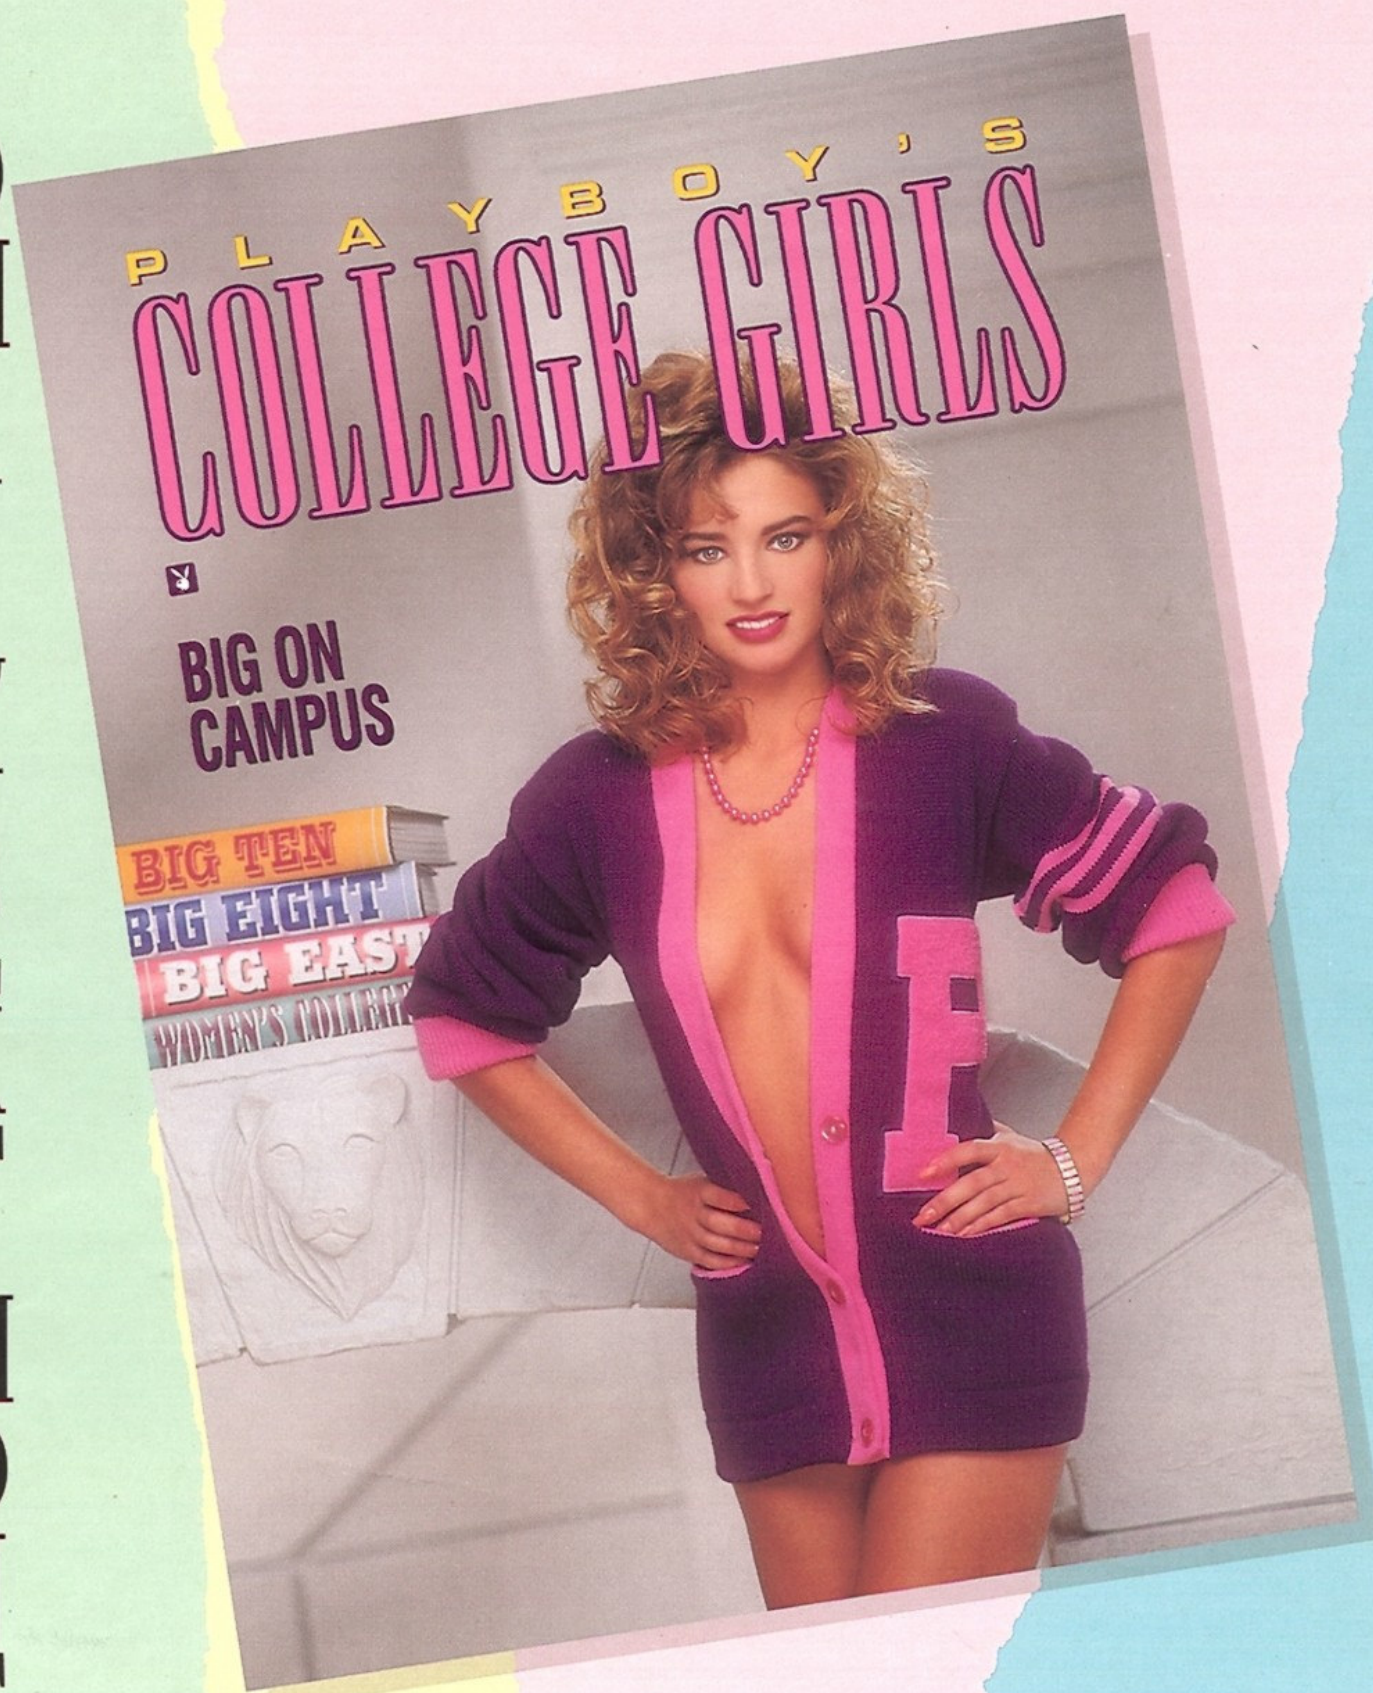

Spanning the years between the Gay Nineties and today's Nineties, Brandi Brandt (left) and Cheryl Bachman (above) prove that lingerie's sex appeal is absolutely timeless. Petra Verkaik (overleaf) reluctantly says farewell for now. Watch for the next issue of Playboy's Book of Lingerie.
